

Baby Growth Chart

Log weight, length, and head circumference at each visit

Baby's Name _____

Date _____

Bring this to each well-child visit and jot down the numbers your pediatrician gives you. Percentiles come from the WHO and CDC growth charts your pediatrician uses, not reproduced here, ask them to note yours if you'd like to track it over time.

Age / Visit	Date	Weight	Length / Height	Head Circumference	Percentile
Birth
2 Weeks
1 Month
2 Months
4 Months
6 Months
9 Months
12 Months
15 Months
18 Months
24 Months

Worth remembering. A single measurement matters far less than the trend across visits. A baby steadily tracking along their own curve is generally doing fine, even if that curve sits on the smaller or larger end of the chart.
